An A1-class International Horticultural Expo
In Japan for the first time in 37 years

What is GREEN×EXPO 2027?

GREEN×EXPO is the abbreviated name of the International Horticultural Expo that will be held in Yokohama, Kanagawa Prefecture (at the former site of the US military's Kamiseya Communications Facility) in 2027. The name is a combination of “green” — referring to plants, flowers, and greenery, as well as nature and being environmentally friendly — and “expo”, an international exposition whose purpose is to contribute to solving globally shared issues. The name reflects the desire for the expo to act as a space for exploring ways to achieve sustainable relationships between nature, humans, and society, and for sharing this knowledge with the world. This will be the first time in 37 years that Japan will host an A1-class International Horticultural Expo (the last time being Expo 1990 Osaka) and it has also been officially recognised as an expo by the BIE (Bureau International des Expositions).

Scenery of the Future for Happiness

A vast area of approximately 100 hectares

10 million plants and flowers

An immense space created using plants and flowers from all seasons, in which you can experience an abundance of nature and biodiversity.

At the beginning of the expo, approximately 600 cherry trees of 40 different varieties will be in full bloom.

Satoyama is a Japanese word for natural woodlands near towns and villages, symbolizing harmony between people and nature.

Plants can be considered the source of life, and the themed pavilion explores this truth.
Here, you can learn how to live as part of the global environment through both real-world and digital experiences.

At the Japanese Government Exhibition, you can experience new technologies for solving global environmental problems, along with the highest standard of Japanese gardens, Ikebana, and Bonsai.
